

Experts to present infra opportunities at IJBrazil20

IJGlobal

30/10/2020

IJGlobal is over the course of the next two months hosting 2 events that will be of particular interest to people active across the Latin America infrastructure and energy markets.

On Tuesday 17 November IJGlobal will host this year's virtual conference about the Brazilian infrastructure and energy project finance, IJBrazil20. The next month, December, IJGlobal will also hold a virtual event focused on Chile, Colombia, Peru, Ecuador and Argentina, IJAndean20.

While the Covid-19 pandemic may have put new projects on hold in Brazil in the short-term, the dynamics have not changed for a country ripe for infrastructure and energy investment.

Brazil enters the next phase of foreign investment courting that will have a powerful impact on the country's infrastructure development. As PPPs and privatizations of rail, roads and airports start to accelerate, and with power projects seen by the government as one of the main pushes for economic recovery from the pandemic, the time is now for the country's vast potential to be capitalised on.

Join us as we bring together the top senior executives and industry experts from across the globe to address key opportunities and challenges of investing in Brazil for 2021. CLICK HERE TO REGISTER

Topics discussed will include:

- Brazil's infrastructure opportunities
- Brazilian power sector and renewables
- road to privatizations
- natural gas markets
- ESG / Green bonds

The extensive list of speakers ranges from government officials to C-level executives. For example, Gabriela Engler, Sao Paulo's executive secretary, will present on the state's pipeline of infrastructure projects.

Guilherme Martins (head of PPP advisory from BNDES) will debate with Bruno Vanuzzi (secretary of partnerships of Rio Grande do Sul state) on privatization projects.

The power sector will be tackled by Joao Guimares, director of Veolia; Pierre-Emmanuel Moussafir, managing director of Eren do Brasil; among others.

Seen as one of the largest markets in the world for green bonds, renewables... ESG investments also promise to be a hot topic debated on a panel including Marcos Meireles (chief executive of Rio Energy), Elbia Gannoum (chief exec of Abeolica), and Pedro Bruno (BNDES' superintendent of governmental and institutional relations).
