IJGlobal is delighted today to publish the winter edition of the IJGlobal Magazine – including an ESG Report and all the winners of the IJInvestor Awards 2020 – once again in digital format, due to the coronavirus pandemic.

The magazine, which is normally posted to subscribers and handed out at conferences, is being sent out in digital format and (once again) it is being made open access to allow for its proliferation around the market.

We have gone large on the people section which, once again, has been sponsored by infrastructure and energy recruitment specialist One Search, before launching into the 2 major sections to this latest issue:

- IJInvestor Awards 2020 – all the winners announced
- ESG Report – sponsored by BBVA

In addition to the round-up of 63 awards, there are long-form interviews of the 2 individual award winners – Outstanding Individual and Rising Star.

In these, Steven Sonnenstein looks back over a career that has highs and highers; while Jemima Atkins shines a light on a new way of thinking by a new breed of infrastructure professional.

We will be publishing both these sections later today as separate “pull-outs” so that you have a lighter version to share... but in the interests of saving the world... not to be printed off.

Beyond these key components of the latest issue, there is repeated focus on hydrogen and its potential as well as a host of individual interviews with leading figures from around the industry. Curiously, these interviews match organisations that have won awards and are followed by an advertisement.
