The sky is filled with warm orange, yellow, and pink hues, with some wispy clouds visible. The towers are arranged in a cluster, with one prominent tower on the left and others of varying heights to its right.

A year to remember... and move up from

As isolation fatigue verges on unbearable, the infrastructure realm has weathered yet another force majeure year. This time however there seems to be a light at the end of the tunnel, with governments slowly moving towards a “living with the virus” mode. An emergency exit kind of light, for 2021 to be remembered by.

While fears of a K-shaped recovery and a very palatable inflation-related risks even in the most stable of markets, in between remote working and efforts to get traction with delayed and new deals, 2021 presented signs of hope. Some industry events returned to their live form and there might just be a feeling that a future like the “old days” could be possible, with some more flexibility.

As the year progressed, sustainability, ESG and green financing were inevitably the talk of the town. With sustainability criteria becoming the new black, it is no wonder that deal numbers reached unparalleled highs, much in tune with the global climate talk of 2021. The latter culminated in a rather underwhelming manner during the COP 26 conference held in Glasgow in November.

Even though not legally binding, the climate deal will set the tone for the next decade on these matters. There was a pledge to cut carbon emissions further, with final agreements left for 2022; there was a plan to reduce reliance on coal for energy needs, a first for the COP26 forum, even though a phase-out was swapped for a phase-down. Then, a phase-out was on the table regarding subsidies for conventional energy and more funds to tackle climate change mitigation and renewable energy sources in developing countries.

A lot has been said during the conference but there is a certain sentiment that the business has, kind of, been told to pull themselves up by their bootstraps and the we-are-all-in-this-together mentality of early and full-blown Covid-19 times has been waning. Is this a satisfactory turn of events? Hardly. But it might just be the exit sign towards hoping that there is a way up and forward in 2022.

Infrastructure Finance – Global Outlook

As December 2021 wrapped a second year marked by the Covid-19 pandemic, global infrastructure financing seems to be regaining its momentum. While data gathered by IJGlobal testified to considerable ups and downs throughout each quarter of 2021 (and much of 2020 before that), full-year numbers signal a considerable growth in terms of infrastructure project finance. Data at the time of publishing this report showed that in 2021 global project finance stood at nearly $529.8 billion – a 38.4% growth compared to 2019 pre-pandemic levels and the highest yearly value since 2017 (though data is subject to change as more comes available). Infrastructure finance also maintained its levels from the previous year finishing 2021 at over $1 trillion globally.

All through 2021 global infra activity has been riding on a wave of refinancing, M&A deals and bonds, as companies turned to capital markets and portfolio reshuffles and refinancing – a trend that became more palpable since the start of 2020. Sponsors turned to re-negotiating conditions and securing new debt in a rush to secure better terms on existing loans. Meanwhile the entire year and especially its second half has been a prime time for infra funds which were particularly active in the M&A field.

2021 saw and ever-growing number of high-value deals reach financial close. A top 5 driven by transactions in the oil and gas sector was thus formed, comprising:

- the massive Area 1 Mozambique LNG liquefaction terminal completed by a consortium of oil majors including TotalEnergies and Mitsui & Co ($22.6 billion, Mozambique)

- Saudi Arabian Public Investment Fund's March bond issue ($15 billion, Saudi Arabia)
- Brookfield Infrastructure Partners' takeover of Inter Pipeline ($12.9 billion, Canada)
- EIG Global Energy Partners and Mubadala-led consortium acquisition of a 49% interest in Saudi Aramco's subsidiary, Aramco Oil Pipelines Company ($12.6 billion, Saudi Arabia)
- Qatar Petroleum's June bond facility ($12.5 billion, Qatar)

With the exception of the Inter Pipeline deal, all of these transactions were concluded in H1 2021, the year has clearly been good one for the oil and gas infra sector. The trend slid into H2 was, as December saw two Russian mega projects reach financial close – the $11 billion Arctic LNG 2 sponsored by Novatek, TotalEnergies, CNOOC and Mitsui & Co, among others, and the $10.1 billion Amur Gas petrochemical complex to be fed by the gas processing plant of the same name.

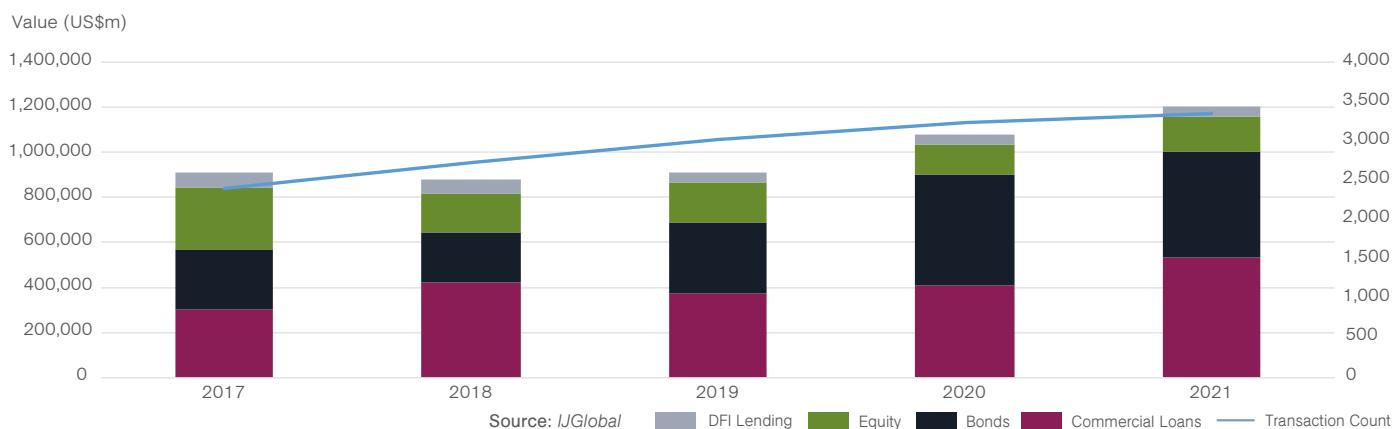

A year of contrasts, 2021 was also big on sustainability-linked deals in all types of financing, with Italian power-sector giant Enel scoring more than $14 billion in sustainability-linked bonds. Other large corporates to step into the sustainability financing spotlight in 2021 were Acciona, Engie, Iberdrola, National Grid, Saur, Vivalto Sante and Adani Green Energy, among others.

Funds were very active when it comes to investing in telecoms and renewables, putting more than $215 billion in these sectors during 2021, as suggested by IJGlobal data.

Regions & Sectors – Outlook

In terms of project finance the year was busy on the Asian, European and North American markets. These regions were the hot spot for new projects with an overall reported cumulative transaction value at nearly $389 billion.

While renewables continued to be the most popular asset class in Europe, with the $3.9 billion financing of the massive 1.2GW Dogger Bank C offshore wind farm and a number of transactions concerning solar and waste-to-energy, the biggest deals to reach financial close in the region were in the oil and gas and telecoms sectors. The Arctic LNG 2 project in Russia brought to financial close in December by a Novatek-led consortium was by far the largest transaction in Europe, funded by $11 billion of debt from local lenders. A number big-ticket transactions concerning fibre networks also marked the period – namely Open Fiber's $8.1 billion refinancing and Telefonica's $3.1 billion push to develop networks in Germany.

This year North American project finance, totalling $128 billion, was also particularly geared towards oil and gas as well as power, keeping a stable average deal value and volume throughout 2020 and 2021 despite the ongoing Covid-19 pandemic. Stonepeak and Venture Global LNG secured close to $6 billion of new debt for the Calcasieu Pass LNG project in Louisiana which also integrates a carbon capture and storage facility. In December Dominion also obtained $2.6 billion for its Cove Point LNG export facility in Maryland. Nevertheless the biggest transaction in the region for 2021 was the $3.9 billion Vineyard offshore wind farm sponsored by CIP-managed funds and Avangrid. The offshore wind deal attracted lenders experienced in the field amassing a total of $2.4 billion in project debt.

The APAC region was, as always, a surprising transaction mix covering all sectors and geographies. The $8.4 billion North East Link in Melbourne, Australia, was the biggest transaction in the region and a global PPP winner. TotalEnergies sponsored the largest renewable energy deal – the $4.9 billion 900MW Ulsan-Jindo Maenggol floating wind portfolio in South Korea – and the Philippines closed their fully privately funded sustainable infrastructure deal – the $1.9 billion Pasig River Expressway sponsored by San Miguel Corporation.

Meanwhile, the LatAm region was busy with addressing transport infrastructure development. Metro projects in Panama and Peru obtained nearly $3 billion in project debt combined to finance the extension of Line 3 in Panama and the construction of Line 2 in Lima, the latter being the first underground railway in the country. Global dynamics in the oil markets also related to a number of oil and gas investments, such as the $1 billion FPSO Prosperity in Guyana and the 665MW Gatun CCGT plant in Panama.

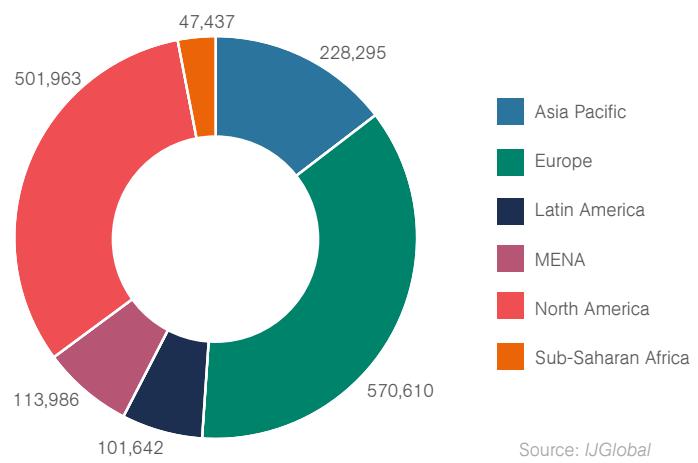

It comes as no surprise that the MENA region had a very active oil and gas market, with Saudi Aramco agreeing the sale of its oil pipeline assets to institutional investor EIG Global Energy for the sum of $12.4 billion. Abu Dhabi National Oil Company joined forces with Austrian chemicals group in extending the Borouge integrated polyolefins complex, securing $4 billion in debt.

SSA meanwhile was home to the biggest transaction in 2021 – the Area 1 LNG in Mozambique, with the remaining top projects concentrated in the social, transport, and renewables sectors.

Capital Markets

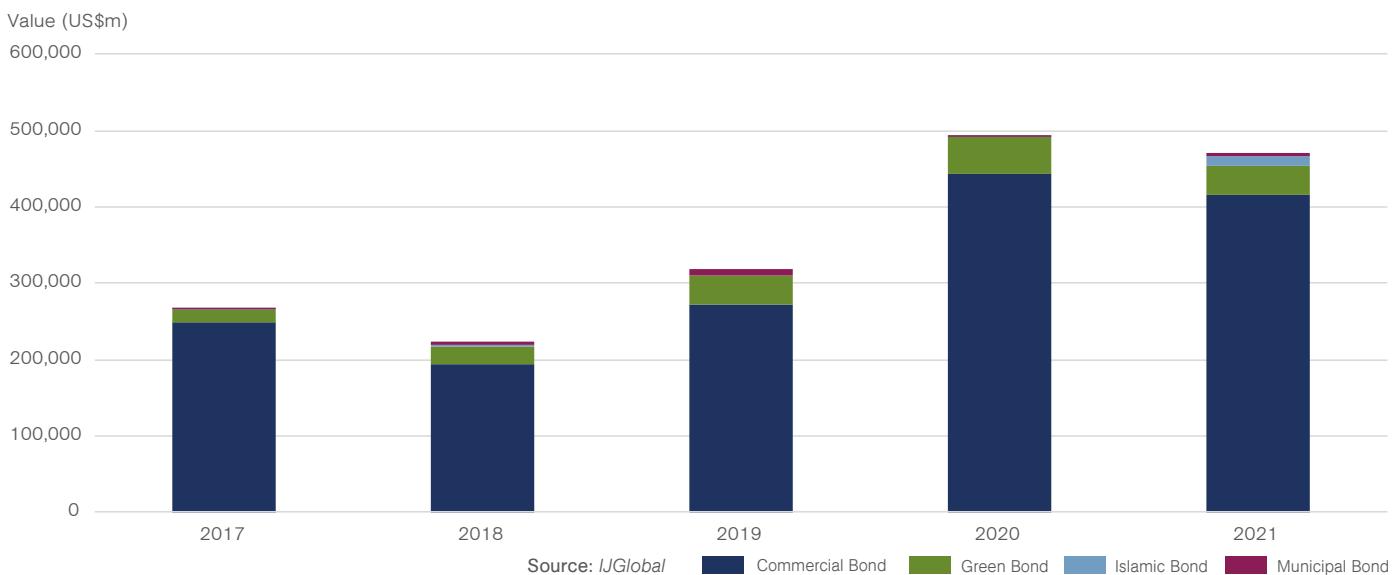

Since the beginning of 2020 bond markets seem to be playing a very important role in infrastructure finance. Investors globally have been relying more and more on tapping into capital markets for corporate purposes, either to refinance existing indebtedness or to develop portfolios. Pipelines, renewables and fiber optic networks alike have been funded by debt emissions. According to IJGlobal data the last two years were a productive period and bond offerings grew to their highest values during the last five years, getting close to $500 billion in 2020 and around $470 billion a year later (although data is subject to change as more becomes available).

Sustainability and green financing were some of the unique trends that emerged in 2020 and cemented their role in 2021. Italian energy major Enel continued its quest to sustainability, placing several sustainability-coordinated bonds in excess of $10 billion in 2021. Other European power and utilities sector leaders such as Iberdrola and Tennet also issued green bonds exceeding several billions in 2021.

Green bonds stood at close to $38 billion in 2021. Albeit lower than 2020, when they reached a 5-year high of nearly $49 billion, 2021 saw some firsts in the infrastructure world. India-based wind and solar operator Adani Green Energy placed its first green bond in September, while another Indian rival – the GIC and ADIA-backed Greenko Group – announced a green bond programme.

M&A

The M&A infra market maintained stable levels throughout 2021 reaching $427 billion. Portfolios have been optimised and companies often stepped into new regional markets and, in some cases, sometimes sectors. Since the start of the Covid-19 pandemic M&A has clearly been on the rise. In 2021 the biggest deals were happening in the oil and gas sector, but also in the power and tele-coms as well.

The top 3 deals concluded during the last quarter were in the oil and gas sector and among the biggest deals globally. In October Brookfield Infrastructure Partners acquired Canadian pipeline operator Inter Pipeline (IPL) for $12.9 billion in an ultimate take-private bid. EIG Global Energy Partners and Mubadala teamed up with the Silk Road Fund, Hassana and Samsung Asset Management, for the acquisition of a 49% interest in Aramco Oil Pipelines Company's assets for $12.6 billion. Meanwhile Saudi Aramco also took part in the acquisition and development financing of the azan IGCC power plant.

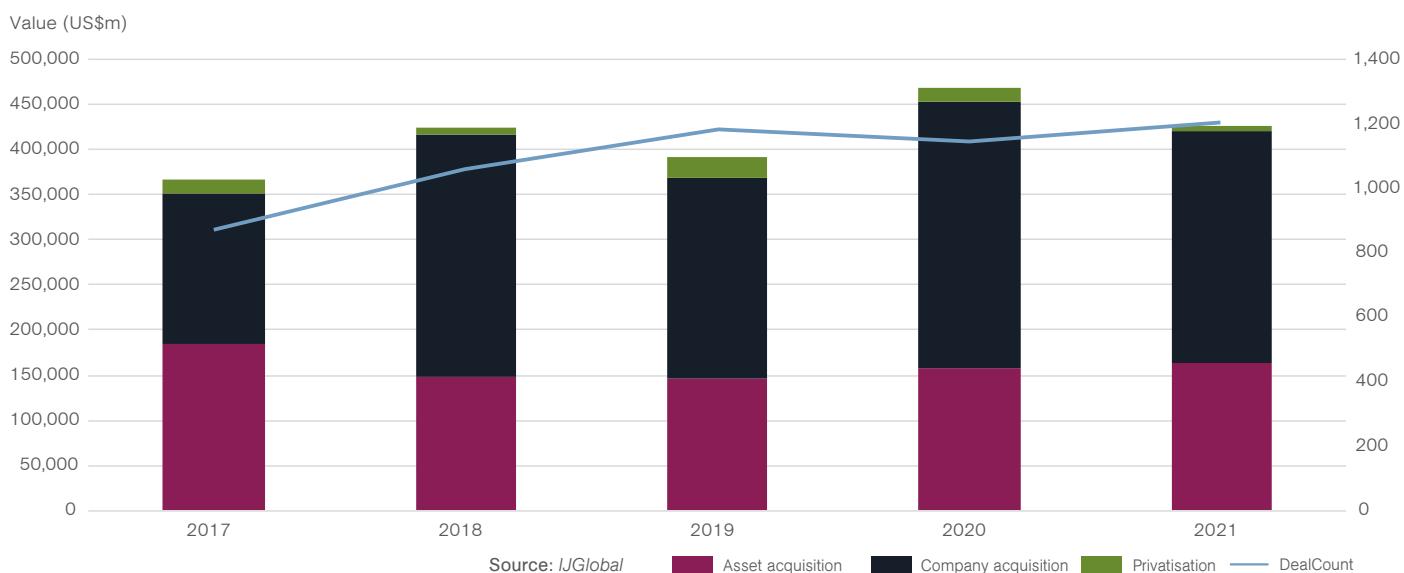

Looking at the power sector, the biggest deal in 2021 was National Grid's $10.8 billion acquisition of Western Power Distribution. PPL Corp.

sold the company as part of its strategic repositioning as a purely US-focused utility holding company. The period also saw in October 2021 KKR acquired a 20% stake in California-based Sempra Energy for $3.3 billion in a bid to stabilise the target's growth and balance sheet. The transaction also gives KKR indirect exposure to IEnova, one of the largest private energy companies in Mexico.

Meanwhile NYSE-listed QTS Realty Trust was acquired by Blackstone-managed investment platforms in August for $10 billion and Stonepeak Infrastructure Partners struck a $8.1 billion deal with TPG Capital and Patriot Media Management for US-based Astound Broadband.

2021 was also marked by another M&A saga concerning the Veolia-Suez merger which also implies the acquisition of the so-called "new Suez" by a consortium of Meridiam and GIP, each with a 40% stake, and the Caisse des Dépôts Group with CNP Assurances, with a 20% stake. While the latter was left for 2022 due to approvals pending, as much as $5.9 billion in sustainability financing was gathered to support the deal.

PPP

Data obtained by IJGlobal suggests of public-private partnerships (PPP) declined for a fifth year in 2021, as global deal values reportedly stood at $30.8 billion. The European PPP market has dropped to 30% of its value in 2021, with fewer new deals coming into market and an ongoing re-view of existing concessions, some of which approaching their term. This downward trend resulted at just 79 deals reported as completed in 2021, mainly in the transport sector and social and defence sectors – the lowest yearly results in the last five years.

Regional PPP value and volume decreased in every single region, except APAC, where there were a number high-value deals closed throughout the year. Melbourne's $8.4 billion North East Link was the biggest PPP transaction globally in 2021. The project was sponsored by a vast consortium of DIF Capital Partners, CCEC and John Laing, among others. Meanwhile, in the last days of September San Miguel Corporation closed on the $1.9 billion Pasig River Expressway – a toll way in the Philippines expected to decrease heavy road traffic. It was the country's first fully privately funded sustainable infrastructure deal.

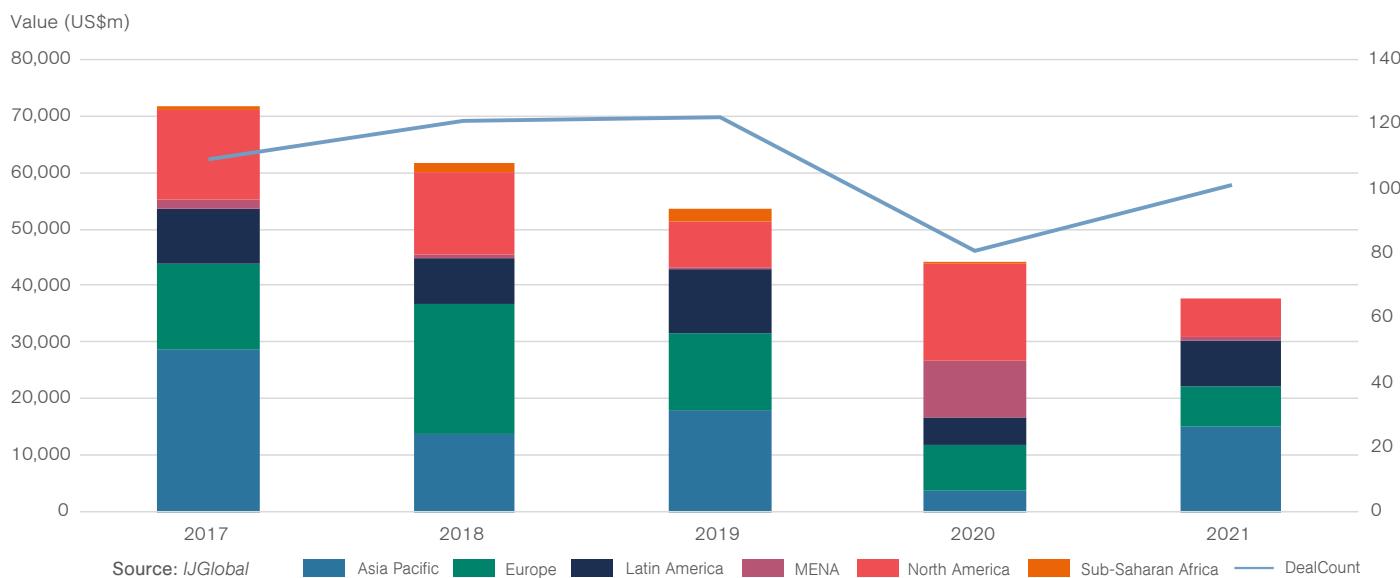

The North American market has been among the most active ones in the last few years. In 2021 the most important PPP deals there comprised the new $1.5 billion St. Paul's Hospital in Vancouver (Canada) and two projects in the U.S. – the $1.1 billion floodwater management channel in Minnesota and North Dakota and the $785 million modernisation of Georgetown University's utility system.

Further south, the Latin American market scored 16% increase in 2021 compared to 2020. Brazil's BR-153/414/080 project – a $1.3 billion toll road network crossing the states of Goiás and Tocantins – was the year's biggest deal. Lima's Metro Line 2 received a nearly $1 billion of fresh debt and Colombia pushed the Rio Magdalena 2 highway deal to completion - the largest financial close of its road infrastructure programme known as 4G.

2021 was a relatively slow period for the European PPP market compared to 2020, with reported values dropping to a little over $6.3 billion. The Spanish market was particularly active, as the refinancing of two sections of Barcelona's metro line 9 cumulatively worth close to $2.2 billion reached financial close, while FCC refinanced a PPP portfolio consisting of motorways, metro lines and public service buildings. Meanwhile details emerged on the much-awaited completion of the $726.7 million D4 motorway PPP in the Czech Republic. Financial close was reached in April by the Vinci/Meridiam duo with multi-tranche Euro-denominated Koruna debt provided by a mix of local and international lenders.

The background of the entire page is a photograph of a large industrial facility, likely a refinery or chemical plant. It features several tall, cylindrical metal structures with ladders and walkways, and a dense network of thick, shiny metal pipes in various directions. The lighting suggests either sunrise or sunset, casting a warm glow on the structures.
